Learning outcomes After the completion of the course students should be able to:

Knowledge and understanding

- demonstrate knowledge of theory and research methods and account for the relation between scholarly content and practical experience and its importance in exercising the teaching profession.

Ability and competence

- scientifically analyze and interpret the relation between English as an academic subject and English as a school subject, using adequate theoretical frameworks
- carry out research on a topic in didactics and document it in a scientific report
- use basic skills in writing and presenting an academic thesis.

Value judgement and attitudes

- critically and independently evaluate, systematize and reflect on one's own and others' experience and relevant research results.

Course content The course discusses theories, methods and approaches within the field of teaching English in schools. Special emphasis is given to planning, carrying out, and presenting an advanced-level scholarly work based on language or literary studies in connection with the teaching of English in grades 7-9. The course features the defense of the student's own paper and the critical review of another student's corresponding work. The search for scholarly publications and articles in databases and the consideration of general and research-related ethical questions within the study of English with an emphasis on didactics are also included in the course.
